Don't be fooled by Imitations

Recently a new synthetic material known as "Titan Quartz" has entered the market in shapes similar to our authentic Whitehaus Collection® Farmhaus Fireclay Sinks. This plastic material claims to be a space-aged synthetic Quartz/Plastic Composite. Do not be fooled by imitations.

Fireclay is a natural, living Element and is therefore unique. Each Whitehaus Collection® Farmhaus Fireclay Sink is individually hand finished to ensure the highest quality and durability. The anti-bacterial glaze is scratch, stain, and burn resistant. "Quartz" plastic sinks are mass-produced and have none of the old-world craftsmanship and charm of true fireclay. Leading kitchen and bath manufacturers have experimented with similar materials in the past and were quickly disappointed with the results.

Plastic composite sinks stain, burn, and easily scratch, providing a breeding ground for bacteria and creating an unsanitary environment. Your clients who are looking for fireclay sinks want only authentic Whitehaus Collection® Farmhaus Fireclay Sinks, not a plastic imitation.
